Adult Population 3-Page Paper (100 points)

In order to design and deliver your final project for adult learners, you must begin to explore the adult learner population. For this reason, complete a paper that defines the population of interest to you, i.e. certain population of college/graduate students, female ex-offenders, adult ESL students, GED students, specific organizational employees, etc. Locate statistics and/or articles that demonstrate that there is a need for programming for this population. Use this information to complete the following tasks:

1. Describe the characteristics of the population.
2. Explain what interests you about this group.
3. Discuss what types of programs these populations need and why (cite this information).

Also discuss:

1. What experience, if any, do you have working with this population or a similar group?
2. What skills and knowledge do you have and/or need to gain in order to engage these adult learners and develop a program for them?

Use scholarly and non-scholarly articles, as well as websites and other Internet resources to find information about the specific group you have chosen. Attach an APA reference page at the end of the 3-page paper. The paper should be double-spaced with a 12-point font.
